

From: Allyson Pollock [redacted]
Date: Fri, Feb 27, 2015 at 6:14 PM
Subject: Re: For the attention of the editor.
To: LRB (editorial) <edit@lrb.co.uk>

[redacted],
Yes I agree most of your diary items would slot in very nicely to the Comment is Free sections of the guardian as would Paul Farmer's articles too!

On Fri, Feb 27, 2015 at 3:32 PM, LRB (editorial) <edit@lrb.co.uk> wrote:
Dear Allyson Pollock

Thank you for letting us see this. I enjoyed reading it but we're very overloaded at the moment and we can't take it on. And I couldn't help feeling while reading it that the piece's natural home would be in the comment section of a newspaper, perhaps the Comment is Free section of the Guardian?

With all best
[redacted]

LONDON REVIEW OF BOOKS

On Sat, Feb 14, 2015 at 9:12 PM, Allyson Pollock [redacted] wrote:

Dear Editor,

Please find enclosed an unsolicited submission on a topic you have yet to cover in the LRB, rugby injuries and especially among children.

Might you consider it for the diary section? I recently published a book Tackling Rugby (Verso) on the subject. Injuries in sport and effects on children is a major public health issue and an entirely neglected area.

I have recently conducted a study in Oxford where over half the hospital A and E attendances in children aged 10 to 18 years are for sports injuries.

I do hope you will consider it.

Yours,

Allyson Pollock